WHEREFORE

There is purpose in genealogy - definite, positive purpose. A great many people treat genealogy merely as a pastime which it is, of course, but at the same time it has vastly greater dimensions than mere divertissement. None of us treat history, recorded events, lightly or purely for pleasure. We study many historical subjects definitely to increase the sum of our knowledge, broaden our horizons, and give us an understanding of the why and wherefore of peoples and their affairs. We feel that we must know what has transpired in the past and the reason for these happenings. While this history of the mass is vital and indispensable how infinitely more important to us, individually, is our own family history. Not until we know the history of our past generations can we hope to know ourselves. Why we are as we are, tall, short, good, bad; brave, cowardly; ambitious, lazy, so on and on throughout the scale of human attributes, has been inevitably determined by the characteristics of our forebears. When we realize that our own being was in the process of creation throughout the ages, then genealogy should take on a new significance and purpose for each one of us.

Once the realization has taken place that genealogy is a necessity and obligation then the direction of our efforts should be determined. Are we to retain our individualistic concepts and gather ancestral history and records purely for personal benefit? This is a dominant, possessive, acquisitive age. We are trained to acquire, to collect, to amass for our own glory and renown, and accomplish much in order to be successful, personally, and obtain the reward which is our due. As genealogists can we change this viewpoint? Can we train ourselves to share our wealth of ancestral data with other kindly searching pilgrims? Can we constitute, or really dedicate, ourselves to the custodianship of our family records? Can we cooperate with others to increase and broadcast a knowledge and true understanding of our ancestors? Can we subordinate our own pleasures and profits for the good of the family as a whole? This is a large order to be undertaken for the good of a cause but any great science has the answer to these questions in its foundation. Certainly, hiding away our records like collections of jewels and hoarded gold will not redound to the glory or prestige of our families and ourselves.

It has always been my contention that family records are not personal belongings. It is true we have expended an unlimited amount of time and some means in the preparation of our family records, and it is natural that we should look upon these records as our personal property. But if we look at these records closely we will find that every one of them came from some source outside the province of our minds. The records always existed, we did not make them. Many people have cooperated gladly, if sometimes tardily, in supplying bits of history and genealogical data. Other bits of history and data have been found in books or records which others had already compiled with much painstaking care and time. It is admitted that only through our efforts these parts were brought together into a comprehensive whole, but the fact of absolute ownership is not established because of that action. "Those things which exist may be possessed by all." Those original records belong to the family as a whole and no matter how we have collected and arranged them they are still family possessions.

An old Hindu Proverb states: "Help thy brother's boat across, and lo! thine own has reached the shore." This is based on sound psychology and has been proved true countless times in unlimited fields of human endeavor. It is nothing more than the law of compensation, "What so ever a man soweth, so shall he reap." Perhaps it is another form of selfishness to believe that we should give in order to receive but, at least, in genealogy the belief is justified and merits our consideration.

NOTES OF THE SOCIETY.

"Those only deserve to be remembered by posterity who treasure up the history of their ancestors." - Burke.

Members who are interested in the Hawks family, may learn something to their advantage by communicating with Mrs. C. U. Bear who has information concerning a Hawk's Family Bible, which contains records of 28 births and 11 deaths. The records date back to 1732 and some of the names are: Joel, George, Lois, and Harriet Henry Hawks, Freeloove Ingalls, and David Taft.

Mrs. Dwight T. Randall, of Detroit, State Registrar, and member of the Sarah Cochrane Chapter, D. A. R., of Plymouth, Mich., was a delegate to the National Congress of that organization which met, recently, in Washington, D. C.

Although confined to her home by illness, Mrs. Joseph D. Kinney has typed a complete set of her ancestral charts. There are fifty of the charts, in all, and besides Mrs. Kinney has furnished a fine Progenitor list in a very good standard form. Sometimes, our finest work is done under the most severe of handicaps.

Many members who have not completed their charts have given us complete Progenitor lists. If you are unable to complete your charts for any reason let us have a list of as many progenitors as you are able to trace out. When the new Progenitor list is made we are very anxious to have every member listed with all progenitors discovered to date.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett of Ann Arbor, and Mrs. Poste of Perry, N. Y., new members, have recently sent in long lists of Progenitors.

The sympathy of the Society is extended to Miss Marcella G. Perkins, of Fremont, Neb., in the recent loss of her mother. Miss Perkins, formerly a resident of Detroit has been missed from our meetings since her removal to the West.

The owner of the family Bible of Eber Loomis, printed in 1808 and mentioned in a query, is Mrs. D. B. Yutema, of Grand Rapids, Mich. She, also, has Major Lemuel A. Abbott's Genealogy of the descendants of "George Abbott of Rowley, Mass. and other Abbott Families".

Edla M. Niles of Superior, Wis., has been collecting material on the Niles Family for many years, with the intention of arranging a genealogy to supplement and complete the records of Mr. Joel Nelson Eno. Miss Niles home is in Ann Arbor, Mich., where the family have lived for many years.

Our active researcher, Floyd A. Church, has loaned us some very complete cemetery records. All members should be on the watch, especially, for small, private graveyards. The project which we hope to start in the fall is the indexing of cemeteries that are now recorded and a control map of the countries in southeastern Michigan showing location of all cemeteries.

We are anxious to have more answers or possible clues to publish in the hope of giving more genealogical aid to our members. Share your good fortune with other fellow genealogists.

The Editors appreciate the assistance of those who have supplied genealogical material and articles and have prepared and typed copy for the magazine.

Attendance at the April meeting totaled 76 including 3 visitors.

DESCENDANTS OF SARAH SIBLEY (TROWBRIDGE) HENDRIE.

7. Sarah Sibley (8) Trowbridge (Charles C. (7)), youngest daughter of Charles C. and Catherine W. (Sibley) Trowbridge, was born in Detroit, Aug. 22, 1843, and spent all of her life in this vicinity. As a life long member of Christ Church she took part in many of its activities, and was instrumental in the raising of funds for the construction of the church tower. She was particularly interested in St. Luke's Hospital and was one of the founders of the Woman's Exchange. She was married, Oct. 31, 1865, in Christ Church, by the Rev. William A. Lyster, assisted by Rev. B. H. Paddock, to George Hendrie, son of John and Elizabeth (Strathearn) Hendrie, born Feb. 9, 1834, in Glasgow, Scotland.

Mr. Hendrie was educated in Glasgow, and, at the age of 24, left his native land and came to America, first locating in Hamilton, Ontario, where he conducted a cartage business. The following year, in April, 1859, he came to Detroit, and established the same line of business. Many years of Mr. Hendrie's life were connected with transportation of various sorts. He became manager, in 1864, of a horse car line, which ran from the Michigan Central Station to Grand Circus Park, and, subsequently, was one of the owners of this and others lines established in Detroit. In 1878, he aided in the organization of a railroad in the upper peninsula. Mainly through his efforts, the first interurban lines, operating out of Detroit, were constructed, which included the Hamtramck & Grosse Pointe line (1888); the Wyandotte & Detroit line (1892); and the Detroit & Pontiac line (1895). In later years, he was largely interested in the navigation companies, which were consolidated, and known as the D.&C. (Detroit & Cleveland Navigation Company). He was, also, interested in lumber developments in the upper peninsula, and land companies near Detroit. Mr. Hendrie's real hobby was that of horse racing. It has been said that he stood for all that was best in racing, and frowned always on anything that threatened the dignity or the honesty of the Sport. His favorite horse was "Red Robe", born and raised in Wayne County, and winner of the Highland Park derby and the Cumberland Stakes at Nashville. Mr. Hendrie was the owner of a large farm of 350 acres, located in Royal Oak Township, Oakland Co. where he raised thoroughbred horses. This farm had nearly a mile of frontage on the west side of Woodward Avenue, between the Ten and Eleven Mile Roads, and is now occupied by the Detroit Zoo and the city of Huntington Woods.

The Hendrie home, from 1865 to 1907, was located on East Jefferson Avenue, opposite Dequindre Street and now a part of the railroad tracks. In 1907, the family established their permanent home on Lake Shore Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, where Mr. Hendrie died Dec. 20, 1913. Only a few months later, Mrs. Hendrie was stricken while attending services in Christ Church, and died the same day May 31, 1914, in her home at Grosse Pointe Farms. Mr. and Mrs. Hendrie are buried in the family lot in Elmwood Cemetery.

26. Strathearn (9) Hendrie (Sarah S. (8) Trowbridge, Charles C. (7)), son of George and Sarah S. (Trowbridge) Hendrie, was born in Detroit, Oct. 12, 1866. He was educated in the public schools of Detroit, and Trinity College, Hartford, Conn. from which he graduated in 1887, with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Returning to Detroit, he became associated with his father in the operation of the Detroit City Railway, and, after two year's service, was made treasurer of the company, and served in that capacity from 1889 to 1891. The Detroit & Pontiac line, and the Wyandotte & Detroit River Railway, were under his supervision from 1891 to 1902. He was appointed by Gov. Rich, in 1895, to swear in the members of the first division of the Michigan State Naval Brigade, stationed at Detroit. When the Spanish-American War broke out, in 1898, he served as Ensign on board the U.S. Yosemite, and from 1901 to 1903, served as commander of the state brigade, and as a member of the state military board. Mr. Hendrie's business interests included the Detroit and Navigation Co.; the Detroit River Land Co.; the Grosse Pointe Land Co.; and the Detroit Taxicab and Transfer Co. He was fond of water sports and was an early member of the Detroit Boat Club. He was married, Nov. 21, 1894, by Bishop Foley, in the bride's home on East Jefferson Avenue, to Catherine Marie Moran, dau. of William Benjamin and Elise Emily (Van Dyke) Moran, born in Detroit, Nov. 25, 1872.

The first of the Moran, (originally Morand), family to emigrate from France to America, was Pierre Moran, born 1651, in Bastican, France, who m 1678, Madeline Grimard and settled in the St. Lawrence Valley. His grandson Charles (3) Moran settled in Detroit in 1734. Mrs. Hendrie's father, William B. Moran, great grandson of Charles (3), and son of Judge Charles (5) Moran, was one of the foremost lawyers in Detroit from 1870 until about 1885, when he retired from practice to take up other interests. He was one of the founders of the Peninsular Stove Works, and was for years connected with that company. He was the owner of a large estate in Detroit, and tracts of land at Grosse Pointe.

Mrs. Hendrie's maternal grandfather, James Adams Van Dyke, a native of Mercersburg, Franklin Co., Pa., came to Detroit about 1834. He was a lawyer of note and held the offices of City Attorney, Prosecuting Attorney for Wayne County, and served as Mayor in 1847. He married Elizabeth Desnoyers, dau. of Peter Desnoyers who arrived in Detroit in 1796.

Mr. Hendrie died at his home in Grosse Pointe Farms, Aug. 25, 1916, at the age of 49 years, and was buried in the Hendrie lot in Elmwood Cemetery. Mrs. Hendrie resides on Belanger Road in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Oct. 19, 1949.* She was educated in the Misses Farnsworth's School, in Detroit, and the Peebles Thompson School, in New York City. It was at this time that she became interested in the Daughters of the American Revolution and joined as a charter member, receiving the National number of 239. In 1928, she was elected Regent of the Louisa St. Clair Chapter, of Detroit, which she had helped to organize in 1893, and had the honor of naming for the daughter of the Revolutionary general, Arthur St. Clair, who was governor of the Northwest Territory from 1789 to 1802. In addition to the D.A.R., she is, also, a member of the Detroit Historical Society and Founder's Society of the Art Museum. Miss Hendrie was married, Nov. 12, 1908 in Christ Church by the Rev. William D. Maxon, to Heatley Green of Syracuse and Detroit, son of Andrew Heatley and Mary (Miller) Green, born July 19, 1878.

Mr. Green is a graduate of Cornell University and until maturity, was a resident of Syracuse and Utica, N.Y. He is an engineer and at present is owner and manager of the Automatic Products Company, of Detroit. He is a descendant of William Green, who was connected with the British Navy and remained in this country after the evacuation of New York. He married Temperance Heatley and settled in Oriskany, N.Y., in 1810. They were the parents of nine children, five of whom settled in Utica. Andrew H. Green was born in Utica and admitted to the bar there in 1852. He practiced in Utica, Syracuse and St. Paul. He was Clerk of the city of Utica in 1853, and City Attorney of Syracuse, 1871-1872. His wife, Mary Miller, was daughter of Rutger Bleecker and Mary Forman (Seymour) Miller. Her grandfather, Judge Morris Smith Miller, came from Long Island to Utica in 1806, and there married Maria Bleecker of Albany. He was a resident of the village of Utica, first Judge of the County, and represented his district in the 13th Congress. His father Dr. Matthias Burnet Miller, of Long Island, served as a surgeon in the Revolutionary War.

Mr. and Mrs. Heatley Green reside on West Maple Road in Birmingham, Michigan.

Children - Green:

- i. Katharine (Kathleen) Hendrie b March 14, 1910, Detroit. Resides, Birmingham, Mich.
- ii. Andrew Heatley III, b Apr. 29, 1913, Detroit. Resides in Pennsylvania.

28. Jessie Strathearn (9) Hendrie (Sarah S. (8) Trowbridge, Charles C. (7)), dau of George and Sarah S. (Trowbridge) Hendrie, was born in Detroit, July 6, 1873, and died there April 27, 1922, at the age of 48 years. Miss Hendrie devoted much of her time to the missions and charities of her church. She was interested in the Sunday School, boys club work, the Woman's Guild, and Woman's Missionary Auxiliary. In 1912, she volunteered and gave a year's service to the Church's Mission in the Philippine Islands. In addition to her church and charitable activities, she was a member and twice president of the Garden Club of Michigan, an officer of the Society

Quoting from an article, published in the Detroit Saturday Night, May 6, 1922, we find that Miss Hendrie, "through her spirit of willing service, fulfilled in the church the best traditions of her ancestral inheritance", and "she evoked the confidence of all who sought her advice and cooperation, while the strength and loveliness of her personality inspired and fast bound the love of innumerable friends. Far and wide, rich and poor, old and young rise up to call her blessed, and all who knew and loved her will refuse to say her life is forever ended." Miss Hendrie's home was on McKinley Road in Grosse Pointe. Her funeral was held in Christ Church, with interment in the Hendrie lot in Elmwood cemetery.

29. George Trowbridge (9) Hendrie (Sarah S. (8) Trowbridge, Charles C. (7)), son of George and Sarah S. (Trowbridge) Hendrie, was born in Detroit, Nov. 11, 1875. He was educated in the public schools of Detroit, St. Paul's School, Concord, N.H., and Trinity College, Hartford, Conn. He became associated in business with his father, in 1896, and, at present, is Secretary - Treasurer of the Grosse Pointe Land Company. Mr. Hendrie is a veteran of the Spanish-American War, and served on board the U.S.S. Yosemite, whose crew consisted of young men from Detroit, members of the 1st division of the State Naval Brigade. He was married, Sept. 26, 1896, in the Evangelical Church at Grosse Pointe, by Rev. A. H. Barr, Presbyterian minister, to Kathleen Washburn McGraw, dau of William A. and Harriet Newell (Robinson) McGraw born Feb. 12, 1880, in Detroit.

Mrs. Hendrie's grandfather, Alexander Cooey McGraw, born Little Britain, Orange County, N.Y., came to Michigan with his father, in the spring of 1830, and first settled near Pontiac. In 1832, he removed to Detroit and opened a shoe shop, his first location being on Jefferson Avenue, between Bates and Randolph Streets. His son, William A. McGraw, born in the family homestead at 460 East Jefferson Avenue, organized the wholesale boot and shoe house of W. A. McGraw & Company and was highly esteemed for his integrity in business. Mrs. Hendrie's mother, Harriet Newell Robinson, dau of Gain and Katherine (Washburn) Robinson, of Detroit, was well known as a leader for social reform. It was largely through her efforts that funds were raised for the building of the Tuberculosis Sanitarium, located at Twelfth Street and Tuxedo Avenue, which was dedicated, Jan. 15, 1911. Following the death of her husband, in 1898, she devoted all of her time to social welfare movements, and it is said that she was never too busy or too tired to work for one more ideal. Many young people of talent were aided by her, financially.

Mrs. Hendrie, an active and valued member of the Twentieth Century Club, was elected it's president in 1928. She is a member of the Society of Arts and Crafts, Woman's City Club, the National Woman's Party and Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. Mr. and Mrs. George T. Hendrie reside on Willetts Street in Birmingham, Michigan. They have no children.

30. William (9) Hendrie (Sarah (8) Trowbridge, Charles C. (7), son of George and Sarah S. (Trowbridge) Hendrie, was born in Grosse Pointe Farms, June 9, 1884. He was educated in the public schools of Detroit, Detroit University School and the University of Michigan. From 1906 to 1910, he was Secretary of the Michigan Auto Parts Company; Secretary and Treasurer of the Detroit Gear & Machine Company in 1910; and, at present, is President of the Grosse Pointe Land Company. Mr. Hendrie served as a major in the World War. He was married, Nov. 22, 1926, in New York City to Mrs. Josephine Navarre (Irvine) Henry, widow of Burns Henry, of Detroit, and dau. of Col. Robert James Crombie and Josephine E. (Hall) Irvine, born in Augusta, Ga., March 19, 1887.

Mrs. Hendrie's grandfather, Rev. Robert Orr Irvine, Presbyterian minister, born in Ireland, but of Scottish descent, came to St. Johns, New Brunswick, in 1844. He finally located in Augusta, Georgia, in 1870, and lived there until his death in 1881.

RECORDS FROM AN OLD BIBLE

Contributed By
 Maude C. Hathaway

The Bible was published in 1803 by Charles Etheridge, Charlestown, Mass.

On a page between the Old Testament and the Apocrypha, is the statement:
 "This Bible is the property of Hezekiah Miller" - $9.50.

We think the Bible belonged to my grandmother, Adeline Kingsley (Chase) Hathaway, but we do not know exactly what was her relationship to the Millers, Masons and Rogers recorded therein.

Part of the record is in as fine a Spencerian hand as if done by a commercial penman. The rest is in two different hand writings. It is copied exactly as written.

Hezekiah Miller borned the Twenty-Sixth Day of February One Thousand Seven Hundred and Fifty-three.

Martha Mason, the wife of Hezekiah Miller, borned the Seventh Day of April One Thousand Seven Hundred and Fifty-Eight.

Charlotte Miller borned the Twenty-Fourth Day of August One Thousand Seven Hundred and Eighty-Seven.

Patty Mason Miller borned the Twelfth Day of July One Thousand Seven Hundred and Ninety.

Mary Mason Miller borned the Sixteenth Day of July, One Thousand Seven Hundred and Ninety-Five.

Kingsley Miller borned the Twenty-Third Day of September One Thousand Seven Hundred and Ninety-Eight.

Genisor (or Denison) Rogers and Charlotte Miller was married on Sunday the 12th of August 1810.

Rodney Addison Rogers our Grandson, was born on Saturday, August 1st, One thousand Eight Hundred and Twelve.

Nelson DeSalvo Rogers was born December 3, 1813, it being Friday.

Frederic Dormer Rogers was born Friday January 5, 1816.

Charles Bingley Rogers was born on Monday April 20, 1818.

The Bible is now in the possession of George A. Hathaway, Blissfield, Michigan.

NOTE: The Society has received from Hallam Spencer Whitney (w-13) a very valuable collection of family information on families of Steuben Co. N. Y. All Mr. Whitney asks in return is that we furnish him with any corrections or additional data that may assist him in solving the problems that have arisen in assembling so much detailed information of the early settlers of Steuben Co. N. Y. Among these families are Allen, Bates, Drake, Erskine, Fairchild, Ford Morse, Northrup, Pratt, Schenck, Spencer, Sargent, VanSkiver and Woodward.

AMERICAN ANCESTRY OF

Frances Ida Schureman Judd

He mentions his cousins, Jacob and John Schureman and leaves his nephew Philip (whom he calls cousin), eldest son of his brother Frederick, $50 as a bar to any further claim. (N. Y. Wills, lib. 30, p. 61). As John (4) Schureman mentions no wife or child it is believed that he never married.

- 9 Frederick (4) Schureman, was a carpenter; he m Jane _____, who survived him. In his will dated Mar. 16, 1775 which was proven Mar. 8, 1776, he left to his wife Jane the use of his house etc. until their son Frederick reached the age of 15. To his sons, Philip, John and William "all fast estate". Legacies to daughters "Christian" and Sarah. His brother Jacob witnessed this will and his brother (24) Jeremiah was made an executor.

Children of Frederick 4 and Jane Schureman;

- I Philip (5) Schureman, m Sarah Elizabeth Rhinelander (dau of Philip Jacob Rhinelander). He was, like his father, a carpenter. Because of his Royalist inclination he was captured by the American Army at Boston and a petition to the Provincial Congress, Aug. 21, 1775 at New York City was signed by Philip's father-in-law, Philip Rhinelander, William Rhinelander Jr., Jacob Rhinelander and others asking for his release, because Philip was very young and had been influenced by others. They asked the Congress to request General Washington to intercede for him. He went to St. John, N.B. in 1783.

Child of Philip (5) and Sarah Elizabeth (Rhinelander) Schureman:

- 1 Philip(6) Schureman; m Magdalena, only child of Jacob (5) Schureman. Had 3 children.

- II John (5) Schureman, who was living Mar. 16, 1775, was probably the one whose tombstone still stands (1932) in the cemetery of the Methodist Church on North Avenue, New Rochelle. The inscription reads:

"Sacred to the memory of John Schureman
who departed this life
March 15, 1816
aged 62 years.
He was. But words are wanting to say what.
Ask what a man should be and He was that."

(Copied from the tombstone by Dorothy (Schureman) McHugh)

- III William (5) Schureman, living May 5, 1797.
- IV Frederick (5) Schureman, under 15 years of age Mar. 16, 1775.
He may have been the Frederick known in New Rochelle as "Old Master," probably a schoolmaster.
- V Christiana (5) Schureman, living Mar. 16, 1775, presumably she was the Christiana Schuirman, who, Aug. 17, 1802, m John Hutchins at the Reformed Dutch Church in New York City.
- VI Sarah (5) Schureman, living May 5, 1797.

24-10 Jeremiah (4) Schureman, b 1726; (old family Bible Record) Affectionately referred to as "the youngest brother" long after his tragic death. On Jan. 29, 1761, a marriage bond was issued to Jeremiah Schureman and Magdalene de Veaux (or "de Foue" as recorded) thus affiliating the direct Schureman line of Samuel Tompkins Schureman with French Huguenot families of Morrisania (Town Westchester) New Rochelle and New York City. About that time this branch of the Schureman family seems to have lost its connection with the Reformed Dutch Church of New York City and to have become adherents of the French Huguenot Church of New Rochelle.

- 11 Christina (4) Schureman, made a joint will with her sister.
- 12 Mary (4) Schureman, when, May 5, 1797 "both being sick", this joint disposition of their property was drawn. The beneficiaries under this will were: (25) Frederick Schureman, son of brother (24) Jeremy who was then deceased; brother Frederick's two sons, William and Frederick; estate of brother John Schureman; niece, Sarah Schureman, dau. of deceased brother Frederick; brother Jacob Schureman's two daughters Hester Bonnet and Jane Bonnet; brother (24) Jeremiah Schureman's widow (name not given). Executors included William Schureman (brother to Sarah Schureman) Witnesses: Thomas Rich and Robert G. Wetmore. Probated Jan. 10, 1798. Apparently neither Christina 4 nor Mary 4 Schureman were ever married.

24. Jeremiah Schureman (4) (Jacob (3) Frederick (2) Harmen (1) was identified with a number of activities in New Rochelle, N.Y. He was a man of property and was a judge of property values as shown by some of the offices which he held during his life. In 1741 he was Collector, and from 1746 - 1752 was Assessor of the town. That he was trusted not only by his family but by his acquaintances was attested by the fact that he was so frequently made executor or administrator of some estate. He as well as his brothers owned negro slaves. In the possession of the New York Historical Society is a ledger which was kept by James Pitcher of New Rochelle 1776 - 1782. At that time 3 slaves were owned by Jacob Schureman, 4 by John Schureman, and William (4) Schureman, and Jeremiah (4) Schureman each owned 5 slaves. (It is interesting to note that Jeremiah (4) Schureman's great grandson, Samuel Tompkins Schureman, was a volunteer Union soldier in the Civil War, and sacrificed his health for the liberation of American slaves, though many of his Colonial ancestors each owned several slaves.

Although a number of the Schureman family were Loyalists, the cause of the Revolutionists won the allegiance of Jeremiah (4) Schureman, and to this he sacrificed his life. At the beginning of the Revolutionary War he was a prosperous farmer possessed of fine stock. His horses and fat cattle early attracted the attention of marauding Tory "Cow-Boys", who infested the neutral ground between the American and British lines near New York, and committed depredations upon the Americans.

Jeremiah Schureman and his neighbors were alarmed because of losses of stock through these cowboys. One night, unperceived, they visited Mr. Schureman's stables and stole his best horses. Missing them the next morning, he mounted the one remaining horse, tracked his horses to their destination, where, with the assistance of friends he reclaimed his horses and returned them to his home. Mr. Schureman's arrival upon the scene had been opportune as the thieves were preparing to sell them for a good price to be taken South for the use of the army.

The Battle of White Plains was fought late in 1776, and when the British troops under General Howe landed, they encamped in New Rochelle. Again Mr. Schureman's premises were visited, this time his fine cattle being taken to furnish fresh beef for General Howe's army. The cowboys, taking advantage of a dark stormy night, started to drive Mr. Schureman's cattle away, when their owner, hearing their hurried footsteps, hastily arose from his bed and opening an upper half-door of his house, and recognizing one of the thieves, he called out; "I know you, boys: I'll report you to-morrow". Immediately one of the thieves fired his musket, shooting Mr. Schureman down at his own door where he died a few minutes later. This was, of course, a great sorrow to Mr. Schureman's wife and five young children. In the Abstracts of Letters of Administration recorded at White Plains (Liber A, p 101) Jeremiah Schureman, of New Rochelle, deceased, intestate; letters of administration granted Jeremiah (5) Schureman, farmer of New Rochelle, Oct. 12, 1791.

At this point will be interpolated the French-American ancestral lines of (W3) Magdalene (deVeaux) Schureman, wife of (24) Jeremiah Schureman.

(W3) Magdalene (deVeaux) Schureman's American ancestors and ancestresses were French Huguenots, who with many thousands of other Protestants were driven from France by relentless religious persecution, to seek refuge in Holland, England, Switzerland, Germany and America.

(W1) Frederick de Veaux, Magdalene's paternal grandfather, was descended from an ancient and noble family which derived its surname from a district in Normandy where it was originally seated. In A D 749, a branch of the Vaux (Veaux) Family in Provence, was allied by marriage with several of the Sovereign Princes of Europe. (See De Veaux Genealogy Col. Thomas F. de Voe. This de Veaux Genealogy covers a long period in the history of the family and illustrates seven coats-of-arms. Also see Americana, and the Roosevelt Genealogy (Theodore Roosevelt branch) for brief histories of the de Veaux family origin. Martha (Bullock) Roosevelt, mother of Pres. Theodore Roosevelt, was descended from this family.)

A number of members of the de Veaux family preceded Frederick to America and reference is again made to the genealogy by Col. Thos. F. de Voe for more about them than can be included in this work.

(W1) Frederick de Veaux was born about 1645 in the Province of Annis (Near Rochelle) France. When about 12 or 14 years of age he with his parents and at least two brothers, Nicholas and Daniel, left their French home, escaping with little beside their lives to Mannheim, Germany. The King's troopers followed them and only because of warning given them by friendly strangers did they escape alive. After this avoidance of danger, they traveled only at night, hiding as best they could in the day time. As they were not provided for such an emergency, they were near starvation when they were cautiously fed by a strange woman who warned them of the close proximity of soldiers who were seeking them. Again this beleaguered family hastened onward eventually reaching Mannheim, Germany, where they had previously known or who were members of their family.

Frederick (1) de Veaux here grew up, entered trade and married about 1673. His wife, however, did not live long. There were no children from this marriage. Frederick's brothers, Nicholas and Daniel, had gone to America and because of their favorable reports, Frederick decided to follow them. He secured a passport which reads as follows; "We, Director, Sheriff, Burgomaster and Council of the Electoral Platz City Mannheim, hereby make known and publish that the bearer of this Frederick de Veaux, late a Burgher of this city, for his own business is intending to travel in Holland, and from thence further to England, in which behalf every one is requested to let the said Frederick de Vaux pass free, safe, and unmolested, at all places also to show him all good will and consideration, we engaging to do the same for every city, according to merit. In witness hereof, we have attached our Seal. Done at Mannheim, this 23rd February, old style, Anno one thousand six hundred and seventy five.

(Seal)

(w1) Frederick de Veaux's brother Nicholas had with his wife, one child, and his younger brother Daniel, settled at Harlem, New York, having accompanied Sir Edmund Andros in 1674, on his voyage to become Governor of New York. Here in 1675 Nicholas was in the Night Watch having been called to that position by the Governor to assist in resisting Indian attacks. Again, in 1677, Nicholas was deputized to assist in cutting 5000 trees to erect a "Palisade Wall" on the line of the present Wall St. New York, to protect the town from Indian invasion. It was from this wall that the street derived its name. After a few years he removed to New Jersey, where he and his wife joined the church at Bergen, later following his wife's relatives to Hackensack, where they erected "The French Church" in the yard of which he and his wife were buried. In 1706, when he was about 64 years old he had married a second wife Margaret Jans.

Children of Nicholas (1) de Veaux by 1st wife:

1. Abraham (2) de Veaux, b 1667, m Mynno (Menno or Minnie) de Mares in 1688. 6 children
2. John (2) de Veaux, b 1669, m 1723, Hester See, b 1697.
3. Hester (2) de Veaux, b 1671
4. Susannah (2) de Veaux, b 1673
5. Maryitie (2) de Veaux, b 1675

Daniel (1) de Veaux, b about 1660 in France, the young brother of Nicholas (1) and (w2) Frederick de Veaux, who had emigrated to America with his brother Nicholas arriving in New York in 1674, m Hannah Frans in 1687. Daniel (1) removed to New Jersey soon after Nicholas did so, living there only briefly, however, when he removed to Rhinebeck on the Hudson River.

Children of Daniel (1) and Hannah (Frans) de Veaux:

1. Metje(2) de Veaux, b 1687, m Janszen Cornelises
2. Carol (or Charles) (2) de Veaux, b 1692
3. Cornelius (2) de Veaux, b 1694, m Helena Hasbrouck (5 children)

9. Rachel (2) de Veaux. (twins) b 1708
10. William (2) de Veaux, b 1711
11. David (2) de Veaux, b 1713

(Note: Mr. Henry David Gray, of Leland Stanford University, author of Early History of the Sicard - Secor Family, has generously granted permission to use the following material from his work, which will correct and append the April installment of this Schureman series: - "Jane whom Jacob"(4) Schureman married was not Jane parient nor Jane Parker" (nor Jane Pareseite) "but Jane Parcot; for John Parcot in his will (1757) mentions Jacob Schureman as his brother-in law. As John married Jane Favaux" (as confirmed by the records of the French Huguenot Churches in N. Y. City) "Jacob must have been his sister's husband, not his wife's brother."

Mr. Gray is a descendant of Daniel (3) Sicard whom Mr. Gray believes (from a study of Trinity Church records) married Catherine, daughter of Caspar and Eliza beth (Schureman) Mabie.

THE CHILDREN OF HENRY AND SUSANNAH (HINDS) CHAMBERLAIN (OR LIN)

by Mrs. Grace E. Chamberlain

OBITUARY OF REUBEN CHAMBERLAIN From the Files of the "Wyoming County Mirror" Written by Hugh T. Brookes. Issue of Feb. 23rd, 1852. Now in basement of Public Library, Warsaw, N. Y.

"This well known pioneer has gone to another country from which none returns. He departed this life Tuesday Morning, the 17th day of February, about four o'clock 1852. Until within about a week of his death he had been in the enjoyment of health and strength to a remarkable degree, when suddenly he became speechless and helpless in which condition he continued, with little change, until his final exit.

He was born the 16th day of January, 1769, in Westmoreland, New Hampshire, from which place he removed with his father to Orwell, Vermont, at the age of 15 years. His father was a soldier of the Revolution, and a Minister in connection with the Baptist denomination.

In the winter of 1802-03, Mr. Chamberlain in company of two of his neighbors, Messrs. Warren and Selleck, started in search of a home in the wilds of Western New York. Their journey had been delayed for some time from a want of snow (a commodity not often scarce in Vermont, I am told) as they had resolved to travel on sleds which proved a very unsatisfactory mode of conveyance after they had descended into a warmer region, and found themselves on bare ground. In this emergency their Yankee ingenuity did not forsake them. Destitute of the mechanical devices and resources of the present day, they were not discouraged. In a short time their sleds were mounted on wheels, sawn from an oak log which they chanced to find, with a sapling for an axle-tree. In this way they proceeded till they came to snow again in the vicinity of Utica. The wheels were (so) elevated from laborious drudgery to a position of dignity and respect, and the runners were again subjected to service. In the neighborhood of Bloomfield the order was again reversed, and on the West side of the Genesee River another change occurred; illustrating a prominent feature of modern society, where the workingman of today becomes the aristocrat of tomorrow.

At Le Roy they found a small settlement, and among the residents, Deacon Hinds Chamberlain, an uncle of the subject of this sketch.

Deacon Chamberlain kindly conducted them to their wilderness home in the wilds of the town of Middlebury, then without an inhabitant. They were obliged to cut their road from LeRoy on, as no one had preceded them on that route. They arrived on the first of March, 1803, at their destination, one or two miles from the present village of Wyoming, on the road leading to Batavia. Winter was in full strength. The following Spring being favorable, Mr. Chamberlain made a clearing and sowed oats and planted corn.

The cattle from the settlement fed on the banks of Allen's Creek in the vicinity of Pavilion, where there was an abundance of herbage. But the cows were not sufficiently domestic in their habits to be punctually at home when the milking time came. One one occasion during a subsequent winter, the cattle were on the creek when snow fell to an unusual depth. Fearing for their safety, Mr. Chamberlain started in pursuit, but they had forsaken their accustomed haunts. Suspecting that they had taken an easterly direction, he at length discovered their tracks on the trail leading toward Leicester, and pursued them. After a fatiguing journey he overtook the herd, and immediately ordered a retreat, but night came on while he was still far from home, and exhausted by wading all day in the snow three feet deep, without food, and there remained nothing before Mr. Chamberlain, but a night of suffering to end perhaps in death, for he could walk no farther.

Without blankets, lightly clad, in the depth of winter, with no human help in reach, prostrate and exhausted, his prospect was dreary indeed. In this extremity a lucky thought occurred to him. There was a large and powerful ox in the drove which knew his master's voice. As if guided by instinct more profound than reason, he stood politely till with great labor and effort, Mr. Chamberlain seated himself on his back. Again the cavalcade proceeded and in due time the faithful beast brought his master, weighing more than 200 pounds, to his own door.

Mr. Chamberlain for many years endured the usual hardships and labors and was exposed to the trials incident to a life in the woods. Though blessed with health and strength to a remarkable degree, he fell a victim to the bilious fever which prevailed to a great extent in the neighborhood settlements. For many weeks he had exposed himself to the disease by watching day and night with the sick. He was reduced very low, and for a time recovery was doubtful. It accorded with the medical practice of the day to restrict patients in the use of water in cases of fever, and in this respect Mr. Chamberlain fared no better than his neighbors. In the delirium of his fever, while suffering from intense thirst, he left his bed and went to the "Cold Spring", as it was called, the most of his way on his hands and knees and drank until he could drink no longer. He retained strength to raise himself up and stretch himself upon the ground nearby, where he lay for some time helpless and insensible. His wife and neighbors started in pursuit and carried him back on a litter which they constructed. His recovery commenced at that hour, and was a signal testimony in favor of the 'water cure' before Bresneitz came to fame.

It may be remarked that the Wyoming Water Cure under the able superintendence of Messrs Hayes & Winchester draws its healing draughts from this same spring.

It will not be thought strange from the writer's not being accustomed to give early attention to such matters, that he forgot until now, that Mr. Chamberlain was married at the age of 24 to Polly Sumner, who died in March, 1816. Subsequently he married Nancy Sekins Pixley, who still survives him. Several children also remain to mourn his loss.

Next week some further particulars may be expected regarding Mr. Chamberlain, and his associates."
